e-HERITAGE

The e-revolution is sweeping through the historic environment sector. The opportunities are immense, but will only be grasped through vision, partnership and clear understanding of the information services people really want.

Electronic documentation of the past and present: this composite image records the track of a diver, in red, over a multibeam image of an underwater wreck site. The Devon Coast, a coaster built in 1905, sank off East Sussex in 1908.
